

Get cosy and creative

Just because a jumper no longer fits you, doesn't mean it's destined for the bin

Favourite jumper lost its shape in the wash? Or maybe it's become too small for you? Perhaps a hole has become too big to sew up? Whatever the reason, if your sweater is no longer wearable – don't throw it away. Instead, upcycle it into a cosy Scandi-inspired cushion.

You can use these cushions to add a touch of pattern to any room in your home – simply choose old jumpers that coordinate with your bedding or dining chairs. And you'll have the satisfaction of knowing they make a truly unique homeware that no one else will have. You could also replicate this method and use it to create cases for hot water bottles – the possibilities are endless.